Now is the Time

Sermon by Pastor Zach Prosser

- The Bible talks about two different kinds of time. The first, chronos, refers to linear, ongoing time—like clock time. The second, kairos, means something different. Defined as “the right or opportune time,” kairos is God’s time, his chosen time where the supernatural world intersects with ours in an extraordinary way.

Can you think of an experience (or experiences) in your walk with God where time changed from chronos to kairos? What happened? What did God cause to change?

- Throughout the history of believers, at our very weakest moments, God comes to intervene himself. At the lowest point, Jesus came himself to save us (see Romans 5:8). These are chosen times when God steps into our human, linear time. Likewise, we can choose to let go of being stuck in our linear time, always focused on just trying to make it through one day and the next. But this choice requires that we give up searching for the easiest way of getting through life and allowing God to intervene in our lives.

How can we step out of linear time and into God’s kairos time? Why does routine or “marking time” get in the way of kairos?

In the context of this week’s sermon, discuss Galatians 6:9: “Let us not become weary in doing good, for at the proper time we will reap a harvest if we do not give up.”
